EXPERIENCE RWF FOR A DAY

The Röpke-Wojtyła Fellowship (RWF) is a prestigious program for outstanding college seniors from diverse disciplines, offering four colloquia throughout the year—one of which takes place in Rome. Now, you have the opportunity to experience the fellowship for a day, and make it possible for future students to attend.

FAITH, BUSINESS & CATHOLIC SOCIAL THOUGHT

Join a select group of business executives who share a passion for ideas in an exclusive program exploring the intersection of faith, business, and Catholic social thought under the guidance of distinguished Catholic scholars.

This event will feature three dynamic discussion sessions. Instead of studying the works of past philosophers and economists, participants will engage directly with the authors themselves:

SAMUEL GREGG

Friedrich Hayek Chair
Economics and Economic History,
American Institute for Economic Research

To present a chapter from
*The Next American Economy

CATHERINE PAKALUK

Associate Professor
Political Economic Thought
*Busch School of Business,
The Catholic University of America*

To share insights from *Hannah's Children

DENNIS TETI

Professor
Western Moral & Political Thought,
and American Political Thought,
Institute of World Politics

To discuss his paper on the Catholic theology of Shakespeare's *'The Merchant of Venice'

SUPPORT
THE FUTURE OF
THE FELLOWSHIP

Your attendance and generosity will enable a student to become a Röpke-Wojtyła fellow for the upcoming year. The ultimate goal of this gathering is to cultivate a dedicated community of sponsors committed to fostering the intellectual and moral development of senior college students engaged in the pursuit of faith seeking understanding.
